Klingon Dialogue
Jagh! Jagh! Jagh!

[JAKH! JAKH! JAKH!]
FaD IN:

1 INT. KLINGON TRIBUNAL CHAMBER

CLOSE ANGLE ON A "GAVEL": a silver orb gripped in a gloved hand. The hand brings down the orb, striking it hard against a sound block. There's a CRASH and a SPARK. REVEAL the gavel is held by...

An elderly KLINGON MAGISTRATE dressed in hooded robes. He sits on a high bench overlooking a large, dimly-lit chamber. Just above his bench hangs a flag displaying the Klingon symbol.

MAGISTRATE

Bring in the prisoner!

TWO KLINGON GUARDS lead a figure to a raised circular platform, enclosed by a rail, in the center of the chamber. The platform is starkly-lit by an overhead light source, and we can't get a clear look at the prisoner. (NOTE: The set is similar to the one in "Star Trek VI").

As the guards place the prisoner in the railed-off area, Klingons assembled in the surrounding gallery bang their staffs on the floor and CHANT in contempt:

KLINGONS

Jagh! Jagh! Jagh!

1A HIGH ANGLE ON THE GALLERY (OPTICAL)

looking down from above, we see two tiers filled with DOZENS OF KLINGONS. The prisoner stands alone in a pool of light in the center of the chamber.

1B ON THE MAGISTRATE who gavels the gallery into silence. He speaks to the shadowed prisoner.

MAGISTRATE

You stand accused of conspiring against the Klingon Empire. How do you respond?

We finally REVEAL the prisoner: it is ARCHER. Though he is in uniform, he is scuffed and ill-kempt.

ARCHEH
I'm not guilty.

MAGISTRATE
When this tribunal convenes tomorrow, you will be given a chance to prove your innocence...
(then)
If you cannot, there is only one punishment!

This pronouncement brings a ROAR OF APPROVAL from the gallery.

OFF Archer, as he reacts to this desperate situation, we...

FADE OUT.

END OF TEASER ACT ONE

FADE IN:

(Note: Episode credits fall over opening scenes.)

EXT. NARENTRA THREE (OPTICAL)

A large city on this Klingon outpost, with familiar Klingon-style architecture. In the center of town, a Grand Tribunal Building which proudly displays the three-pointed Klingon symbol.

INT. KLINGON CELL

Stark and bare, furnished with two stone "cots." The sole occupant is Archer, who holds a plate with the leg of some kind of animal on it – clumps of fur and leathery skin still cling to it. Archer considers trying to eat it, then wisely decides against it. He sets the plate aside.

The large heavy door to the cell swings open and PHLOX ENTERS, led in by a KLINGON GUARD. Archer, surprised to see the Doctor, stands to greet him.

GUARD
(to Phlox)
You have five minutes.

The Guard stands watch near the open doorway.

ARCHER
(to Phlox)
Glad you could drop by.

PHLOX
How are you?

ARCHER
I've been better.

PHLOX
I wasn't sure if I'd find you alive.

ARCHER
(dryly)
They promised me a trial before the execution.

Over this, Phlox takes out his medical scanner and begins running it over Archer.

(CONTINUED)
ARCHER
(re: scanner, puzzled)
Something wrong?

Phlox gives Archer a pointed look.
PHLOX
Xenopolycythemia can be highly contagious.
(a glance to the guard)
I'm surprised they haven't put you in isolation.

The Guard reacts, subtly alarmed... and he steps outside into the hallway, but continues to watch them closely through the metal mesh.

PHLOX
(to Archer)
Any residual symptoms... fever, dizziness?

Archer now realizes what Phlox is up to: he's told the Klingons that Archer is ill in order to get to see him.

ARCHER
(playing along)
Just a scratchy throat.

PHLOX
Let's have a look.

As he continues to examine Archer...

ARCHER
When did you get here?

PHLOX
Two days ago, but they refused to let us see you.

ARCHER
Enemies of the state aren't allowed visitors.

PHLOX
T'Pol was finally able to convince them that your... condition necessitated a visit from your doctor.

ARCHER
Very thoughtful of her.

PHLOX
She sends her regards... and she wanted me to assure you that Starfleet and the Vulcan High Command are doing everything possible to get you released.

(continues)
ARCHER
Are they having any luck?

PHLOX
Not yet.
(then)
But she and Commander Tucker have begun exploring... other options for regaining your freedom.

Archer realizes Phlox is talking about a rescue attempt.

ARCHER
When this is over, whatever the outcome, I’m counting on them to get Enterprise safely out of Klingon territory.

PHLOX
I’ll let them know.

Phlox notices the Guard is watching them closely. Phlox can’t drag out his “exam” much longer.

PHLOX
How are the accommodations?

ARCHER
Not too bad.
(re: his food)
Can’t say I’m a big fan of Klingon cuisine.

Phlox notices the plate with the animal leg. He runs his scanner over it.

PHLOX
It may not appear appetizing, but it seems like a good source of protein. I suggest you eat it.

Archer reacts, but before he can say anything a Klingon
ENTERS the cell:

KOLOS is older, probably in his sixties, with a grey hair and beard. We can sense immediately that he’s not typical of the Klingons we’re used to; he seems more dignified and thoughtful. But there’s also a weariness about him. He’s a veteran of the Klingon judicial system, and we’ll discover that over the past decades he’s witnessed the gradual degeneration of Klingon society into a brutal warrior culture. This pains him greatly... but the fire and fight have gone out of him.

KOLOS
(to Phlox, curt)
Is he infectious?

PHLOX
I don't believe so...

KOLOS
Then return to your ship.

PHLOX
(protesting)
I'd like to run some more tests.

KOLOS
(bluntly)
You're not here to treat him.

Phlox hesitates... it's difficult for him to leave Archer.

ARCHER
(to Phlox)
Thanks for the house call.

PHLOX
(encouraging)
I'm sure I'll see you soon.

Phlox turns and EXITS, leaving Archer face-to-face with Kolos.

KOLOS
I'm Kolos... your advocate.

Archer looks at the wizened Klingon standing before him... wondering what kind of defense he'll be able to muster.

ARCHER
Jonathan Archer.

Kolos clearly isn't interested in getting to know Archer. He nods toward the door.

KOLOS
The tribunal is about to begin.

He turns to go. Archer reacts, what's going on here?

ARCHER
We haven't even discussed what happened.

KOLOS
I'm familiar with the charges.

(CONTINUED)
ARCHER
Well, I'm not familiar with your... justice system. What can I expect out there?

KOLOS
Now that you've been charged, the evidence against you will be presented.

ARCHER
(pressing)
When do I get a chance to testify?

KOLOS
You'll remain silent. I will conduct your defense.

ARCHER
(pressing)
How can you do that when you haven't heard what really happened?

KOLOS
(impatient)
I know what happened!

A tense beat. Kolos eyes him... he feels sorry for Archer, but he's reluctant to get too personally involved in the case.

KOLOS
(a little more sympathetic)
You mustn't speak during the tribunal. I'll speak for you.

Kolos heads out. OFF Archer, not encouraged...

CUT TO:

INT. KLINGON TRIBUNAL CHAMBER (OPTICAL)

A HIGH ANGLE looking down on the chamber as Archer is led to the center platform, Kolos beside him. in the center of the chamber. As before, Klingons fill the gallery. They glare at Archer with hostility, and a CHANT RISES as Archer takes his place.

KLINGONS
Jagh! Jagh! Jagh!

Archer glances to Kolos.

ARCHER
What are they saying?

KOLOS
"Enemy."

ARCHER
(dry)
I hope they're not the jury.

KOLOS (flattly)
There is no jury.

The prosecutor, ORAK, ENTERS. He is younger than Kolos, forties, and is crafty and aggressive, with a flair for the dramatic -- he knows how to play to the crowd. Upon seeing him, the Klingons in the gallery CHEER.

ARCHER
Who's that?

KOLOS
Prosecutor Orak. His success is well known.

ARCHER
What about you? What's your success rate?

Archer's question has caught Kolos off-guard. Kolos is here to play his role, not to actually win cases.

KOLOS
I've... performed my duty.

The Klingons in the gallery fall silent as the Magistrate ENTERS and takes his seat on the high bench. He bangs his gavel with a CRASH and a SPARK.

MAGISTRATE
This tribunal is convened! Strength to the Empire!

(MORE)
MAGISTRATE (cont'd)

(beat)
Prosecutor Orak, you may proceed.

Orak bows respectfully to the Magistrate, then...

PROSECUTOR ORAK
I call Duras, son of Toral.

DURAS, a classic Klingon warrior, fierce and stoic, steps forward. He bows to the Magistrate, then turns to face Archer.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
(to Duras)
Captain Duras, tell the tribunal about your encounter with the accused --

DURAS
(interrupting)
I'm no longer a captain.

PROSECUTOR ORAK Explain.

DURAS
I am a second weapons officer, serving on the Ty'Gokor defense perimeter.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
(playing confused)
The Duras I called to testify is commander of the Battle Cruiser Bortas.

DURAS
I was... recently reduced in rank.

Duras is humiliated by this information, and Orak knows it. He is exposing this man's shame to make his point.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
(with mock pity)
A distinguished Klingon warrior, stripped of his command?

Orak turns and plays to the gallery.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
Did the accused have anything to do with your... disgrace?

Duras gives Archer a hard look.
DURAS
Yes.

PROSECUTOR ORAK Go on...
(slightly mocking)
Weapons Officer Duras.

DURAS
(a beat)
A group of rebels had fled the Klingon protectorate of Raatooras.
I was commanded to bring these traitors to justice.
(beat) We'd followed their warp trail to a system just outside Klingon territory...

OFF Duras, we...

CUT TO:

OMITTED

INT. KLINGON BRIDGE - FLASHBACK (OPTICAL)

ANGLE ON DURAS sitting in the captain’s chair on his ship, the Klingon Battle Cruiser "Bortas." His FEMALE FIRST OFFICER mans her station, along with THREE KLINGON BRIDGE OFFICERS.

FIRST OFFICER
(off her console)
They’re near the fifth planet.
(then) There’s another vessel docked with them.

DURAS
Show me.

ANGLE ON THE VIEWSCREEN: we see a battered TRANSPORT
SHIP. Docked with it, twice its size, is ENTERPRISE.
In the background is a PLANET WITH A PROMINENT RING SYSTEM.

Duras is intrigued by the sight of Enterprise.

DURAS
What kind of ship is that?

FIRST OFFICER
Unknown... but they’ve taken the rebels aboard.

DURAS Armaments?

FIRST OFFICER
(off console)
Torpedo launchers... fore and aft.
Low-yield particle cannons.
(confident)
We can defeat them easily.

DURAS Intercept!

But before the First Officer can comply, her console BEEPS. She works a control.

FIRST OFFICER
They're signalling us.

DURAS Viewer!

ON THE VIEWSCREEN the image of the two ships is replaced by Archer on the Bridge of Enterprise.

(NOTE: This flashback is from Duras' point of view. Although the gist of his exchange with Archer is basically the same as Archer's version, Archer seems to be acting uncharacteristically hostile here.)

DURAS
Identify yourself!

ARCHER
(an edge)
Captain Archer of the Battle Cruiser Enterprise.

DURAS
The people aboard your ship are wanted for treason. Surrender them immediately!

ARCHER
By whose authority?

DURAS
The Chancellor of the Klingon High Council.

ARCHER (aggressive)
I don't know your Chancellor, and I don't give a damn what he wants.

ENTERPRISE: "Judgment"  -  1/16/03  ACT ONE  12.

ARCHER (cont’d)
I’ve formed an alliance with these people... and I’m going to support their revolt!

DURAS
(back at him)
Give them to me now, or I’ll destroy your vessel!

ARCHER
(challenging)
Fire one shot, and you’ll be joining your ancestors in the afterlife!

CUT TO:

INT. KLINGON TRIBUNAL CHAMBER - BACK TO PRESENT 7

As before, Duras testifying. Orak turns to him.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
He refused to surrender the rebels?

DURAS
Yes!

ANGLE ON ARCHER 8

who leans into Kolos.

ARCHER
I didn’t say any of those things...

Kolos remains silent.

ARCHER
(pressing)
Can’t you object?

KOLOS
It’s not important.

Archer reacts, frustrated.

ANGLE ON DURAS AND ORAK 9

PROSECUTOR ORAK
(to Duras)
And how did you respond to Archer’s defiance?

DURAS
I pitied him. He was about to die defending these wretched traitors...

Archer can't hold back any longer.

ARCHER
They weren't traitors!

The Magistrate bangs his gavel. SPARK!

MAGISTRATE
(to Kolos, admonishing)
Advocate! Haven't you informed the prisoner of the rules of this tribunal?

KOLOS
My apologies, Magistrate.
(to Archer)
Be silent or you'll be removed.

Archer realizes he has no choice.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
(to Duras) Continue.

DURAS
(re: Archer, bitter)
I showed him more patience than he deserved, but he obviously wanted blood to be spilled...

INT. KLINGON BRIDGE - FLASHBACK (OPTICAL)

ON THE VIEWSCREEN, Archer as before.

DURAS
(to Archer)
Don't be a fool! Your ship is inferior... you won't survive a battle with us!

ARCHER
(defiant)
Death to the Empire!

Archer BLINKS OFF the viewscreen, replaced by a view of Enterprise and the transport ship. In this version of events, Enterprise FIRES the first shot, a PHASE-CANNON BLAST that ROCKS the Klingon Bridge!
10 CONTINUED:

DURAS
Return fire!

11 EXT. SPACE - KLINGON BATTLE CRUISER (OPTICAL)
as it FIRES its DISRUPTORS! Enterprise is HIT, then returns fire with another PHASE-CANNON BLAST!

11A NEW ANGLE (OPTICAL) as Enterprise UNDOCKS from the transport ship and PULLS AWAY, going to high impulse!

12 INT. KLINGON BRIDGE
As before.

FIRST OFFICER
They’re heading for the ring system.

DURAS
(contemptuous)
The coward thinks he can hide... pursue them!

CUT TO:

13 EXT. SPACE - KLINGON BATTLE CRUISER (OPTICAL) as it follows Enterprise into the PLANETARY RINGS, which are comprised of dense, murky streams of PLASMA, DUST and ROCKY DEBRIS. The Klingon ship FIRES its disruptors!

13A ANGLE - ENTERPRISE (OPTICAL) which is navigating through the DEBRIS! The disruptor fire BLASTS APART a large chunk of rock, narrowly missing Enterprise!

14 INT. KLINGON BRIDGE (OPTICAL)
Duras is watching the viewscreen, which shows the dense debris field moving past. Enterprise is nowhere in sight.

DURAS
Where are they?

The First Officer keeps working, uncertain.

DURAS (impatient)
Answer me!

FIRST OFFICER (off console)
The debris's interfering with sensors...

A long, tense beat as Duras eyes the viewscreen with intent... then he sees something:

DURAS There!

On the viewscreen, we see the tail-end of an Enterprise nacelle just visible behind a HUGE MASS of ROCK.

DURAS
Target their engines... all weapons!

Another tense beat goes by as they approach the large rock on the viewscreen. Closer... closer...

15 EXT. SPACE - PLANETARY RINGS (OPTICAL)
ANGLE ON Enterprise holding position behind the massive rock. It FIRES a single TORPEDO, which STREAKS around the rock and toward the Klingon ship!

16 INT. KLINGON BRIDGE (OPTICAL)
On the viewscreen, the Enterprise torpedo can be seen heading directly toward them. A beat as the torpedo approaches... then it DETONATES before it reaches the Klingon ship!

16A EXT. SPACE - PLANETARY RINGS (OPTICAL)
As the torpedo EXPLODES, it IGNITES the murky streams of plasma, creating a turbulent BLASTWAVE that expands outward in all directions!
16B ANGLE - THE KLINGON SHIP (OPTICAL) is violently ROCKED by the explosion!

16C INT. KLINGON BRIDGE (OPTICAL)
SHAKING HARD! Lights flicker! SPARKS all around!
Everyone hangs on! The viewscreen has gone to STATIC.

FIRST OFFICER
(off console)
We've lost sensors! Shields are down!

DURAS
(quickly) Manual targeting!
(beat) Fire!!

17 EXT. SPACE - PLANETARY RINGS (OPTICAL)
The plasma is now dissipating, and Enterprise is SWOOPING PAST the Klingon ship, FIRING PHASE-CANNONS and TORPEDOES in a violent BARRAGE! BOOM! One of the Klingon NACELLES is HIT!

18 INT. KLINGON BRIDGE
Another SHAKE!

FIRST OFFICER
(working)
They're leaving orbit!

DURAS
Follow them!

FIRST OFFICER
Our engines are down!

As Duras SLAMS a console in frustration...

CUT TO:

19 INT. KLINGON TRIBUNAL CHAMBER (OPTICAL)
ON DURAS, still just as frustrated.

DURAS
...it took three hours to repair our warp drive.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
But, of course, by then they were gone.
'(a touch of contempt)
You're fortunate your First Officer didn't kill you for such a failure. You're dismissed.

Duras moves off to the side of the chamber, throwing an angry look to Archer. Archer leans in to Kolos.

ARCHER
(sotto)
You're not going to question him?

KOLOS
(sotto)
He'd say nothing that would help you.

MAGISTRATE
(to Orak)
Do you have further evidence to present?

PROSECUTOR ORAK
No, Magistrate. Duras' testimony is clear. He attempted to carry out his mission... to bring enemies of the Empire to justice.

He steps toward Archer.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
But this... aggressor...
'(with contempt)
...this "human"... conspired with them to disgrace a proud warrior and foment rebellion! There can be no doubt -- he is our enemy, as well!

The gallery CHEERS and bangs their staffs in agreement!

PROSECUTOR ORAK
(relishing the moment, playing to the crowd)
Captain Archer claims that he's innocent... innocent of what?

Another round of CHEERS!
PROSECUTOR ORAK
This tribunal has already been far too lenient! We haven't accused his crew... or his government! He's fortunate we didn't dispatch a fleet of warships to his home world!

(then)
But we do demand that he be held responsible for the crimes he's committed! We demand that he receive the most severe punishment our laws decree!

(with gusto)
Jagh! Jagh! Jagh!

The crowd chimes in, frenzied:

KLINGONS
Jagh! Jagh! Jagh!

The magistrate strikes his gavel, and the crowd quiets down.

MAGISTRATE
(to Kolos)
Do you have a response?

KOLOS
No, Magistrate.

MAGISTRATE
Then I will consider the evidence, and deliver my verdict once I've --

ARCHER
(interrupting)
I'd like a chance to defend myself.

MAGISTRATE
(to Archer)
You've been warned.

ARCHER
(re: Duras)
He's distorting the truth.

MAGISTRATE
Be silent!

ARCHER
(pressing)
Those people weren't rebels... and I wasn't trying to start a rebellion.

(MORE)
ARCHER (cont’d)

(beat)

I’m not your enemy!

Over this, two GUARDS move toward Archer and JAB him with PAIN STICKS! Archer drops to his knees in pain! The guards move to jab him again, but Kolos steps forward to stop them.

MAGISTRATE

This tribunal is in recess!

He strikes his gavel! OFF Archer, struggling to his feet...

FADE OUT.

END OF ACT ONE FADE IN:

20 INT. KLINGON HOLDING CELL

An hour or so has passed. Archer sits on one of the stone cots, still a bit stiff from the jabs of the pain sticks. He’s finally gotten hungry enough to try the animal leg seen earlier... he tears off a small chunk of the leathery meat and takes a bite... reacts to the unpleasant taste...

Ka-klank! The cell door opens and the Guard lets Kolos in. Archer and Kolos exchange a tense look.

ARCHER
(re: animal leg)
What is this?

KOLOS Targ.

ARCHER
It’s a little underdone.

Archer sets it aside. After a beat:

KOLOS
I told you to remain silent... you should’ve listened to me.

ARCHER
Sorry I interfered with your... legal strategy.

KOLOS
My “strategy” may yet spare your life.

(THEN)
I’ve spoken with the Magistrate. He’s willing to show you mercy if you cooperate.

ARCHER How?

KOLOS
Tell him where to find the rebels.

ARCHER
I told you, they’re not rebels...

KOLOS
(tempor flaring)
It doesn’t matter what you believe!

(MORE)

Kolos doesn’t answer, but it’s clear that they would.

Archer
Tell the Magistrate I’m going to pass on his offer.

Kolos
(frustrated)
Only a fool would sacrifice himself for people he barely knows!

Archer
I know them well enough... they’re good people... and I won’t turn them over.
(pointed)
If you’d let me testify... tell my side of the story... it might become clear why I helped them.
(MORE)
ARCHER (cont'd)
But from what I've seen, you're all perfectly happy to ignore what you don't want to hear!

This touches a nerve in Kolos...

KOLOS
You shouldn't be so quick to accuse me of sharing their... interpretation of the law.

ARCHER
Yeah? And what's your interpretation?

KOLOS
I became an advocate many years ago... they were different times...

ARCHER
Better or worse?

KOLOS
(carefully)
The courts were more willing to... listen.

ARCHER
Then maybe you should remind them of those "different times."
Nothing like a good history lesson.

KOLOS
I'm an old man... too old to challenge the rules.

ARCHER
Even if your client's life depends on it?
(pressing him)
I get the feeling you're just as frustrated as I am... that you want to stand up to them, but you've given up... you're afraid of them!

KOLOS
I am not afraid!

ARCHER
Then prove it! Challenge them! Show them what a real trial is like!
OFF Kolos, his reaction tells very little...

CUT TO:

INT. KLINGON TRIBUNAL CHAMBER (OPTICAL)

A short time later. Archer, shackled once again, has been placed back on the center platform. Duras and Orak stand by as the Magistrate takes his place on the bench. He BANGS his gavel.

MAGISTRATE

Strength to the Empire!

The Magistrate looks to Kolos.

MAGISTRATE

Have you informed the accused of our offer?

KOLOS

(a beat)
I have.

MAGISTRATE

And does he wish to address this tribunal?

Kolos glances at Archer.

KOLOS

He does.

(them, pointed)
He wishes to testify in his own defense.

A MURMUR RUMBLES through the Klingons in the gallery above. Orak turns to the Magistrate.

PROSECUTOR ORAK

I object! The time for testimony is over!
KOLOS
With respect, Magistrate... no verdict has been reached.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
Irrelevant! I urge you to end these proceedings!

KOLOS
(protesting)
I’m within my rights to present further testimony!

PROSECUTOR ORAK
You’re speaking of archaic rights!

Kolos draws himself up and approaches the bench. Archer watches as we see a bit of the old fire glimmering in Kolos’ eyes.

KOLOS
Surely, I don’t need to remind the Magistrate... the judicial charter of Koloth states that an Advocate is entitled to challenge the charges at any point during the tribunal!

Kolos is gaining a bit of momentum. Now it’s his turn to play to the crowd.

KOLOS
To my knowledge, that charter has not been cast aside.

(voice rising)
From the time of Kahless, our courts have stood as a forum where justice is dispensed with honor.

(intense)
Now will my case be heard or will it not!?

The Magistrate glares at Kolos, outraged to be challenged in his own courtroom. You could hear a pin drop in the chamber. Then...

MAGISTRATE
Call your witness.

At this, the galley ERUPTS! The assembled Klingons leap to their feet, banging their staffs and SHOUTING in outrage. The Magistrate brings his gavel down with a CRASH... once, twice. Finally, the gallery settles.

Kolos approaches Archer. They exchange a look, Archer impressed with Kolos’ change of heart.
KOLOS
(to Archer)
Identify yourself.

ARCHER
Captain Jonathan Archer of the Earth starship Enterprise.

Orak jumps in, trying to regain control of the trial.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
Do you admit, Captain Archer, that you gave aid and comfort to a vessel fleeing the Empire?

ARCHER
We answered a distress call. They were starving... their life support was failing...

PROSECUTOR ORAK
Their health isn't at issue here. You helped them escape!

KOLOS
(overlapping, to Magistrate)
Will my witness be allowed to testify or not?

The Magistrate looks at Orak.

MAGISTRATE
Prosecutor, you will show the Advocate the same respect he has shown you.

Orak reacts, frustrated, but remains silent.

MAGISTRATE
(to Kolos)
Continue.

Kolos nods respectfully to the Magistrate and turns back to Archer.

KOLOS
Recount for the tribunal your version of the events.

Archer takes a breath.

ARCHER
As I said, we received a distress call...

CUT TO:

INT. BRIDGE - FLASHBACK (OPTICAL)

Archer is in the Captain's chair. T'POL, REED, HOSHI and MAYWEATHER are at their stations. Their attention is on:

THE MAIN VIEWSCREEN, where we see a small, battered ALIEN CARGO SHIP listing in space. (NOTE: This is the same vessel seen in Duras' flashback.)

ARCHER
(to T'Pol)
Bio-signs?

T'POL
(off her console)
Twenty-seven.

Archer looks to Hoshi.

ARCHER
Any response?

HOSHI
No, sir.

ARCHER
(to Reed) Malcolm?

Reed looks over his console.

REED
Main propulsion's off-line, life support is failing...
(looking up)
They're in a bad way, sir.

ARCHER
(to Mayweather)
Can we dock with them?

MAYWEATHER
Their port engine is venting reactor coolant. I can try to come in on the starboard side, but it'll be tricky...

A beat, then:

ARCHER
(to Mayweather)
Do your best.

As Mayweather works...

CUT TO:

INT. SICKBAY - FLASHBACK

Archer and Phlox stand over the central bio-bed, where an ALIEN REFUGEE lies. He's thin, almost emaciated and his clothes are grimy and ragged -- evidence of harsh treatment and a torturous voyage.

In the background, two Enterprise MEDICAL TECHNICIANS can be seen tending to four bedraggled REFUGEES. Mid-scene:

ALIEN REFUGEE
(ragged)
Our warp drive failed three weeks after we left... we tried to set a course for the nearest system at impulse... but main power went down...

ARCHER
How long ago was that?

ALIEN REFUGEE
I don't know... six weeks, maybe more...?

(then)
We diverted auxiliary power to life support, but it wasn't enough... the food processors failed, water recyclers...

PHLOX
(low, to Archer)
I’ve put them all on protein supplements, but two of them are in serious condition.

ALIEN REFUGEE
When we left... there were fifty-four aboard.

ARCHER
What brought you out here?

The Refugee hesitates, unsure of whether he should continue...

ALIEN REFUGEE
Several years ago our colony was... annexed by a species we’d never seen before. They said they’d provide for us in exchange for our allegiance... that we’d become part of their “Empire.”

Archer and Phlox exchange a look, “Empire”?

ALIEN REFUGEE
(continuing)
But they stripped us of our resources... left us with nothing... we waited for them to return... they said they’d bring food, fuel...

(then)
They never came back.

CUT TO:

23C INT. KLINGON TRIBUNAL CHAMBER (OPTICAL)

We’re back to the present. Archer testifies from the center platform. Kolos steps forward, reacting to the last piece of Archer’s testimony.
He wisely tries to head off the prosecution's argument by bringing it up himself.

KOLOS
You knew they were fleeing the Empire?

ARCHER
We knew their colony had been abandoned.

KOLOS
And you chose to show them compassion?

ARCHER
They were starving. They wouldn't have lasted another week --

PROSECUTOR ORAK
(cutting in)
They were subjects of the Empire. Their welfare was not your concern.

ARCHER
(pointed)
Apparently, it wasn't yours, either.

There is a HOSTILE reaction from the gallery. Orak quickly picks up on it. He plays to the gallery...

PROSECUTOR ORAK
You see the contempt these humans have for us? He still believes he's done nothing wrong!

KOLOS
And Prosecutor Orak has yet to prove that he has.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
He aided these rebels and now he refuses to help us bring them to justice!

This brings the gallery to its feet. The Klingons pound their staffs and chant:

KLINGONS
Jagh! Jagh! Jagh!

The Magistrate bangs his gavel and the gallery settles.

MAGISTRATE
(a beat)
I will hear what the accused has to say.

Kolos nods to the Magistrate and turns back to Archer...

KOLOS Continue.

ARCHER
My Chief Engineer determined their vessel was beyond repair...

CUT TO:

24 INT. READY ROOM - FLASHBACK

Archer and T'Pol discuss the situation, mid-scene:

ARCHER
Some of the crew'll have to double up, but I think we can accommodate all of them.

T'POL
I've already given the order.

Archer gives her a look, "Oh really?"

T'POL
(lightly)
Considering the alternative was to set them adrift... I anticipated your decision.
Archer nods, amused.

T'POL
Where do you plan to take them?

ARCHER
They were heading for a system a few light years from here. That should keep them safe from the Klingons.

T'POL
Empires tend to expand. They may eventually discover they haven't traveled far enough.

Before Archer can respond:

REED'S COM VOICE
(urgent)
Captain... please report to the Bridge.

CUT TO:

24A INT. BRIDGE - FLASHBACK (OPTICAL)

Archer and T'Pol ENTER from the Ready Room. Reed, Hoshi and Mayweather are at their stations.
On the VIEWSCREEN: A KLINGON BATTLE CRUISER.

ARCHER
(eyes Viewscreen)
Looks like they didn’t abandon the colonists after all.

REED
Perhaps they’re bringing the supplies they promised.

T’POL
It’s a D-5 Battle Cruiser. I doubt it’s bringing supplies.

Archer considers.

ARCHER
How long before they get here?

REED
Seventeen minutes.

ARCHER
Are all the refugees aboard?

Reed checks his console.

REED
Yes, sir.

ARCHER
Cut their ship loose and go to Tactical Alert.

Reed works his console and the Bridge goes to TACTICAL ALERT. OFF the tense beat...

CUT TO:

25 INT. KLINGON TRIBUNAL CHAMBER - PRESENT (OPTICAL)

Prosecutor Orak reacts to the testimony Archer has just given.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
(accusatory)
So, you were preparing for battle!

But Orak isn’t listening. He plays to the Magistrate and the gallery.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
The accused has admitted that he knew the rebels were subjects of the Empire --

ARCHER
(interjecting)
They may have been subjects of the Empire... but it sure as hell looked like you had abandoned them!

PROSECUTOR ORAK
(ignoring Archer)
-- and he knew the Bortas was coming to retrieve them! Yet he launched a deliberate attack against an Imperial vessel! This human is guilty of more than inciting rebellion. He has committed an act of war!

The gallery leaps to its feet, pounding their staffs and ROARING THEIR APPROVAL. OFF the moment...

FADE OUT.

END OF ACT TWO ACT THREE

FADE IN:

25A INT. SITUATION ROOM - FLASHBACK (VPB)

Archer, TRIP, Reed, T'Pol and Mayweather are gathered around the WALL MONITOR, which displays a SCHEMATIC OF THE D-5 BATTLE CRUISER. Mid-scene, urgent:

TRIP
(dryly)
I don't suppose there's any chance of outrunning them?

T'POL
Their maximum speed is warp six.

MAYWEATHER
If we could disable their engines...

REED
(off schematic)
Sustained fire from our phase-cannons might be able to penetrate their armor...

(then)
But I doubt they'd sit still long enough to give us the chance.

Archer thinks for a beat, then taps a control. The MONITOR SHIFTS to a view of the RINGED PLANET.

ARCHER
(to T'Pol)
What's the composition of those rings?

T'POL
Nothing unusual... methane ice, isolytic plasma, diamagnetic dust...

Archer looks to Reed, the wheels now turning in his mind.

ARCHER
When we pulled that Klingon ship out of the gas giant... did you get a look at their sensor array?

REED
Pretty standard multi-spectral sensors... not too different from ours.

ARCHER
(off monitor)
If we could ignite the plasma in those rings... would it disrupt their sensors?

REED
For a few seconds...

ARCHER
A few seconds'll have to do. Can you modify a torpedo?

REED
I believe so.

ARCHER
How long?

REED
(dryly)
How long do I have?

T'POL
The Klingon ship will be here in less than eleven minutes.

ARCHER
(to Reed and Trip)
Get moving.

As they head for the Turbolift...

CUT TO:

INT. KLINGON TRIBUNAL CHAMBER

Archers on the central platform, continuing his testimony. Prosecutor Orak challenges him:

PROSECUTOR ORAK
So, you laid a trap for the Bortas?!

ARCHER
We had no intention of firing first.
PROSECUTOR ORAK
(sarcastic)
Such a noble human!

KOLOS
(to Magistrate, annoyed)
I was assured the accused would be allowed to speak... without interruption.

Orak nods, acknowledging the jab.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
By all means.
(a look to Archer)
I find his version of events extremely entertaining.

ARCHER
The Bortos dropped out of warp with their weapons charged...

CUT TO:

27-30 OMITTED

31 INT. BRIDGE - FLASHBACK (OPTICAL)

Archer is in the Captain’s chair, T’Pol, Mayweather, Hoshi and N.D.s at their stations.

MAYWEATHER
(to Archer)
They’re on an intercept course... two hundred thousand kilometers and closing.

During this, Reed ENTERS from the Turbolift and heads to his station. Archer gives him a look and Reed nods... they’re ready.

ARCHER
(to Hoshi)
Hail them.

Hoshi works her console and Captain Duras appears on the viewscreen, seated on the bridge of his ship.

(Note: This is now told from Archer's point of view, and their interaction will differ from Duras' testimony: Archer is trying his best to be diplomatic and Duras is extremely aggressive.)

DURAS
Identify yourself!

ARCHER
I'm Jonathan Archer, Captain of the starship Enterprise.

DURAS
You're harboring fugitives! Surrender them!

ARCHER
I wasn't aware they'd committed any crime.

DURAS
They're wanted for inciting rebellion!

ARCHER
From what I could tell, they were in no condition to incite anything. Apparently, their colony was abandoned by the --

DURAS
(cutting him off)
Turn over the rebels! Now!

ARCHER
What do you intend to do with them?

DURAS
That's none of your concern!

ARCHER
(trying to defuse the situation)
I'm sorry... but I'm not prepared to hand them over without a little more information. If I could speak with someone in your government --

DURAS
(impatient)
I speak for the Empire!

(Continued)
ARCHER
Fair enough. Let's sit down and try to --

Duras BLINKS OFF the Viewscreen, replaced by a view of the BATTLE CRUISER. The Klingon ship FIRES disruptors, and the Bridge is ROCKED!

EXT. SPACE - KLINGON BATTLE CRUISER (OPTICAL)
Enterprise RETURNS FIRE with a PHASE-CANNON BLAST!

INT. BRIDGE (OPTICAL)
As before.

REED
Hull plating at eighty-percent... no damage to the Klingon ship.

ARCHER
(to Mayweather)
Head into the rings.

As Mayweather works the helm...

T'POL
(off her station)
They're pursuing.

ON THE VIEWSCREEN: We see Enterprise is entering the ring system -- LARGE CHUNKS OF DEBRIS and murky TENDRILS OF DUST AND PLASMA move past.

Archer stands at Mayweather's shoulder as Mayweather intently works the helm. A long, anxious moment as we navigate the debris. The Bridge SHAKES AGAIN...
T'Pol peers into her viewer.

T'POL

We're approaching a large fragment... six hundred meters in diameter. Bearing two-two-seven, mark four.

ARCHER

(to Mayweather)

Put us behind it.

As Mayweather works the helm...

---

34-35 OMITTED

36 EXT. SPACE - PLANETARY RINGS (OPTICAL)

Enterprise moves into position behind the huge rocky mass (as seen in Act Two).

37 INT. BRIDGE

A tense beat as the Bridge crew waits...

REED

(off his console)

They're closing, sir... four thousand meters...

ARCHER

Stand by...

REED

Three thousand meters... two thousand...

The tension mounts as Reed tracks the approaching ship.

37 CONTINUED:

REED
Eight hundred meters!

ARCHER
Fire.

38-39 OMITTED

40 EXT. SPACE - PLANETARY RINGS (OPTICAL)
The Enterprise torpedo flies around the rock fragment and into the rings. BOOM! It EXPLODES, IGNITING a STREAM OF PLASMA!

41 INT. BRIDGE
The Bridge crew tensely monitors their stations.

REED
(off his console)
Our sensors are down...

ARCHER
Let's hope theirs are, too.
(to Mayweather)
Get us out of here.

As Mayweather works...

CUT TO:

42-43 OMITTED

44 INT. KLINGON TRIBUNAL CHAMBER (OPTICAL)
Archer finishes his testimony. Kolos steps forward...

KOLOS
You say the Bortas fired first?

ARCHER
Yes.

KOLOS
And you tried to reach an accommodation with Captain Duras?

ARCHER
He refused.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
(cutting in)
Duras was under no obligation to "accommodate" this human!

KOLOS
(overlapping, to Archer)
So, you were simply defending your ship when you attacked the Bortas?

ARCHER
Yes.

KOLOS
And what happened then?

ARCHER
We left the system and took the refugees with us.

KOLOS
You could have destroyed the Bortas... why didn’t you?

ARCHER
Because Captain Duras is not my enemy.

Kolos pauses as he lets Archer’s words sink in.

KOLOS
Not your enemy...
(then)
I submit to this Tribunal that Captain Archer is guilty...

The gallery reacts, a MURMUR running through the assembled Klingons.

KOLOS
(continuing)
Guilty of meddling in Klingon affairs on more than one occasion.

Kolos turns and plays to the Magistrate and the gallery.
He prowls the chamber, growing more impassioned as he makes his closing argument.

KOLOS
In fact, I discovered that his name is well known to the High Council.

(MORE)
KOLOS (cont’d)
The accused once stood before the Chancellor himself, and exposed a Suliban plot that would have thrown the Empire into civil war.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
That is absurd --

KOLOS
The facts are on record! Perhaps the Prosecutor has grown complacent with his research.

Orak glowers.

KOLOS
(continuing)
The records of the Imperial Fleet also mention this man. His ship was instrumental in the rescue of the Klingon Raptor "Somraw" from the dense atmosphere of a gas giant.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
(dismissive)
Even if this is true, it has nothing to do with this case --

KOLOS
It has everything to do with this case! It shows a pattern in Archer’s behavior that was repeated in his encounter with Captain Duras.

(voice rising)
He may be self-righteous, but his "meddling" has saved a Klingon ship and perhaps the fate of the Empire itself!
The gallery is silent, listening.

KOLOS
If I had a word of advice to give Captain Archer, it would be to keep out of our affairs...
(then)
If he is guilty, he's guilty of nothing more than being a nuisance... hardly worth the attention of this tribunal. And if he must be punished, let the punishment fit that crime.

Kolos bows respectfully toward the Magistrate. OFF the moment...

CUT TO:

INT. KLINGON HOLDING CELL

A short time later. Archer and Kolos sit side-by-side on one of the stone cots. For a moment, neither one of them speaks. Then...

ARCHER
How long should it take for a verdict?

KOLOS
It usually doesn't take long at all...
(dryly)
I must have been more persuasive than I thought.

After a beat:

ARCHER
Thank you for what you've done for me.

KOLOS
Don't thank me yet. The odds are still very much against us.

Over this, Kolos pulls a weathered animal-skin from his cloak. He offers it to Archer.
ARCHER
What is it?

KOLOS
Blood-wine. It should help make the wait more pleasant.

Archer takes the skin and removes the top. He takes a slug... and nearly chokes.

ARCHER
(a beat, gasping)
What's it the blood of?

Kolos reacts, amused. He takes the skin and takes a healthy slug himself.

KOLOS
Don't feel badly if you can't stomach it...

Archer takes the skin back and takes another hit.

ARCHER
I didn't say that...

They sit for another beat, then...

ARCHER
How many cases have you won?

KOLOS
I'm not sure... over two hundred.

Archer reacts, impressed.

KOLOS
But that was a long time ago... when the tribunal was a forum for the truth, not a tool of the warrior class.

ARCHER
(lightly)
There are other classes?

Kolos shoots him a look.

KOLOS
You didn't believe all Klingons were soldiers?

ARCHER
I guess I did.
Kolos nods sadly.

KOLOS

My father was a teacher... my mother a biologist at the University. They encouraged me to take up the law...

(a beat)
Now, all young people want is to take up weapons as soon as they can hold them... they're told there's "honor" in victory... any victory.

(bitterly)
What honor is there in defeating a weaker opponent? Had Duras destroyed that ship he would've been lauded as a hero of the Empire... for murdering helpless refugees.

He takes another deep drink of blood-wine.

KOLOS

We were a great society not so long ago. Honor was earned through integrity... not senseless bloodshed.

Archer looks closely at Kolos for a beat, then...

ARCHER

For thousands of years, my people had similar problems. We fought three "world wars" that almost destroyed us... whole generations were nearly wiped out.

KOLOS

What changed?

ARCHER

(pointed)
A few courageous people began to realize they could make a difference...

Archer holds Kolos' look for a beat, then the door opens and the Guard ENTERS. It's time for the verdict. As Kolos and Archer rise to go...

CUT TO:

INT. KLINSON TRIBUNAL CHAMBER (OPTICAL)

A few moments later. The Magistrate brings down his gavel with a CRASH and SPARK as the tribunal reconvenes. Archer has taken his place on the center platform, and Kolos and Orak stand by.

MAGISTRATE
I have weighed the evidence carefully. Advocate Kolos has made an impressive case...
(dryly)
Much to the surprise of this tribunal.
(then)
Based upon his arguments I am inclined to believe that the accused was a victim of his own foolishness... he was not fomenting rebellion.

A surprised MURMUR passes through the gallery. Orak doesn't look pleased.

MAGISTRATE
But as Prosecutor Orak has made clear, the laws of the Empire were violated, and Captain Archer must be held accountable for his actions... regardless of his intent.

Archer and Kolos exchange a look, that doesn't sound good.

MAGISTRATE
I therefore find the accused guilty as charged.

The Klingons in the gallery CHEER, jumping to their feet and pounding their staffs. The Magistrate immediately gavels them into silence...

MAGISTRATE
However... however, this tribunal cannot ignore his actions assisting the Klingon people. Therefore, the sentence of death is commuted...

The gallery SHOUTS in anger, banging their staffs. Orak looks stunned, and Kolos looks to Archer with an expression of pride and relief. The Magistrate again gavels the gallery into silence.

MAGISTRATE Silence!
(then)
Jonathan Archer, you are condemned to the dilithium mines on the penal colony of Rura Penthe...
(then)
...for the remainder of your life.

OFF Archer's reaction, we...

FADE OUT.

END OF ACT THREE ACT FOUR

INT. KLINGON TRIBUNAL CHAMBER

Continuous from Act Three. The Magistrate bangs his gavel.

MAGISTRATE
(to Guards)
Remove the prisoner!

Two Klingon Guards move toward Archer, but Orak suddenly speaks up...

PROSECUTOR ORAK
I protest!

The Magistrate looks down at Orak.

MAGISTRATE
(dryly)
I wouldn't protest too loudly, Prosecutor. You've won your case.

PROSECUTOR ORAK
And I compliment the Magistrate on his just ruling... but the sentence for these crimes must be death!

Before the Magistrate can respond, Kolos speaks up:

KOLOS
The sentence is death!
(bitterly)
You condemned this man to Rura Penthe. What is the life expectancy of a prisoner there... six months, a year at most?
(with contempt)
And you expect us to believe that this is an act of mercy?

The Magistrate gives Kolos a dark look.

MAGISTRATE
(a warning)
This court has shown you a great deal of patience, Advocate. Don't test my limits any further.

KOLOS
I ask for no special treatment, only that my client be judged fairly...

(MORE)

KOLOS (cont'd)
...as any Klingon would be judged.

(grimly)
But it's been many years since anyone stood in this chamber and received justice.

MAGISTRATE
(darkly)
Watch your words! You insult the honor of this tribunal.
But Kolos doesn’t waver. He locks eyes with the Magistrate, his outrage building.

KOLOS
(incredulous)
Honor? You acknowledge that Captain Archer acted with conviction and integrity. And how do you reward him?
(mocking)
With a grand public display of “compassion” before sending him to his death in a frozen cave!

MAGISTRATE Enough!

KOLOS
(overlapping, intense)
Forgive me if I fail to see the honor in that.

MAGISTRATE
(outraged)
You’re in contempt of this tribunal! Since you have such admiration for the prisoner, you’ll join him on Rura Penthe for a period of one year!

The Magistrate brings down his gavel with a CRASH!

MAGISTRATE
(to Guards)
Remove the Advocate!

The Guards move forward and grab Archer and Kolos. As the two men exchange a look, we...

CUT TO:

EXT. SPACE - ENTERPRISE (OPTICAL) in orbit of Narendra Three.

INT. BRIDGE
Reed, Hoshi, Mayweather, N.D.s at their stations. Trip and T’Pol stand near the Captain’s chair -- which is unoccupied. T’Pol has just delivered the news of Archer’s conviction to the crew, who seem stunned. Mid-scene:
T'POL
The Vulcan High Command will continue to lobby for the Captain’s release.

Trip speaks for everyone...

TRIP
(frustrated)
So, what do we do?

T'POL
The Klingons only allowed us to remain here during the trial...
(beat)
We’re to leave immediately.

REED
And abandon the Captain?

T'POL
We don’t have a choice.

MAYWEATHER
What’s this... Rura Penthe like?

T'POL
It’s quite... inhospitable.

A beat as this sinks in, then...

REED
They’re going to have to get there...

T'POL
(dubious)
We’re deep inside Klingon territory, a rescue attempt is out of the question.

TRIP
I’m willing to risk it.

T'POL
(firmly)
The Captain isn’t. He made it clear he didn’t want us to endanger the crew on his behalf.

TRIP
So, you’re saying we just forget about him?
T'POL
I'm saying a rescue isn't an option... but there are diplomatic channels.

TRIP (frustrated)
We tried diplomatic channels!

T'Pol gives Trip a pointed look...

T'POL
Not all of them.

Trip reacts... what's she implying?

T'POL
I've dealt with several Klingon bureaucrats in the past. Some of them can be... "persuaded."

Trip nods. He realizes T'Pol isn't willing to give up either. Then...

T'POL
Mister Mayweather... take us out of orbit.

Mayweather works the helm. T'Pol sits in the Captain's chair. We hold on her for a beat, as we...

DISSOLVE TO:

EXT. RURA PENTHE - DAY (OPTICAL)
A frozen, snowswept wasteland. A sky with two suns. The weathered tops of subterranean structures poke up through the snow and ice: entrances to the dilithium mines.

INT. RURA PENTHE - DILITHIUM MINES (OPTICAL)
Beneath the frozen planet... KLINGON PRISONERS, dressed in ragged layers of skins and alien arctic clothing, chop ore out of the frosted walls with low-tech tools. A KLINGON GUARD keeps an eye on them.

WE FIND Archer and Kolos working side by side. Archer sports two weeks of beard growth, and he's wearing layers of animal skins over his dirty uniform.

The harsh conditions are taking their toll on both men, but the older Kolos is clearly getting the worst of it. He stops his work for a moment, catching his breath. Archer notices.

ARCHER
You all right?

KOLOS
(ragged)
Perhaps I’ve spent too much time in the law library... not enough on the battlefield.

ARCHER
Not all Klingons are warriors, remember?

Before Kolos can reply, the Guard approaches and jabs Kolos with a pain stick! The old Klingon groans in pain and drops to his knees.

KLINGON GUARD
Our ships run on dilithium, not talk!

ARCHER
Leave him alone.

The Guard shoots Archer a dark look, gripping his pain stick.

KLINGON GUARD
(to Archer)
Get back to work!

The Guard moves to kick Kolos, but Archer jumps forward and roughly shoves the Guard away from the older Klingon.

Angered, the Guard brings up his pain stick, intending to subdue Archer with it, but Archer grabs the pain stick. They wrestle over it for a moment, and Archer is finally able to wrench it away. He JABS the Guard with it, stunning him! Suddenly, a SECOND KLINGON GUARD appears, drawn by the disturbance.

He JOLTS Archer with his pain stick! Archer crumples, dropping the pain stick. The second Guard jabs Archer again, giving him a sustained JOLT!
Any more trouble from you, and you’ll spend the night on the surface.

The Guards move off, leaving Archer prone on the icy ground. Kolos moves painfully to Archer’s side, helping him to sit up. They sit for a moment, both in pain...

KOLOS
You’re a fool.

ARCHER
(ragged)
You’re welcome.

KOLOS
Haven’t you learned your lesson?
(off Archer’s look)
This is why you were sent here in the first place... interfering in affairs that have nothing to do with you.

ARCHER
We have a saying on Earth... you don’t kick a man when he’s down.

Kolos shakes his head...

KOLOS
So... all humans are like this?

ARCHER
Like what... fair?

KOLOS Stupid.

ARCHER
It’s in our nature.

Kolos considers Archer for a beat, then drags himself to his feet.
KOLOS
Stand up. We have work to do...

He holds out his hand to Archer.

KOLOS
Unless you want to sleep on the surface.

Archer takes his hand and Kolos pulls him to his feet. As they get back to work...

53 INT. RURA PENTHE - ANOTHER PART OF THE MINE

Some time later. Prisoners continue to toil. We find Archer, sporting bruises from his beating, working on a wall with a Klingon-style pickaxe. He chops off a piece of rock and tosses it in a nearby basket. Kolos works beside him.

While they work, the Klingon Guards bring in a group of five more PRISONERS. The prisoners are swathed in furs and heavy clothing against the cold, a few wear hoods, and we don't get a good look at them. Archer notices.

ARCHER
New arrivals.

Kolos looks up as the Guards put the new prisoners to work in the shadows a short distance up the tunnel.

KOLOS
(dryly)
Prosecutor Orak has been busy.

Kolos picks up the basket of dilithium ore, which is now full, and moves off out of view. As Archer continues to work alone, we see:

53A ONE OF THE NEW PRISONERS

watching him intently from the shadows. He quietly slips away from the other prisoners and begins moving toward Archer. We play a tense beat as this prisoner inches closer to Archer, until suddenly...
Kilos grabs the prisoner roughly by the arm. The prisoner tries to pull away, but the burly Klingon holds the smaller man tightly. Archer notices the commotion.

Kilos
(to the prisoner)
Stay away from us! We don't have anything you want!

But the prisoner pulls off his hood, revealing he is actually Reed!

Reed
Captain.

Archer
(to Kolos)
It's all right, he's from my ship.

Kilos warily releases Reed and steps back.

Reed
(to Archer)
Good to see you, sir.

Archer
You, too. Lieutenant Reed, this is Kolos... my Advocate.

Reed nods to Kolos.

Reed
A pleasure.

Archer
How did you get here?

Reed
T'Pol knows a few Klingon officials from her days in the Ministry of Security. One of them put her in touch with a corrections officer who was willing to... look the other way for the right price.

(MORE)
REED (cont'd)
I came on one of the dilithium barges... we bribed the captain to bring us here and then take us back to Enterprise.

Archer glances to Kolos.

ARCHER
(to Reed)
Is there room for one more?

REED
I imagine so, but we have to hurry.

ARCHER
(to Kolos)
Come on.

But Kolos hesitates...

KOLOS
I can't go with you.

ARCHER
Why not?

KOLOS
I've been an advocate for fifty years, and I've spent the last twenty of them standing before the Tribunal playing my part...
(bitterly)
...holding my tongue. All the while, honorable men were being sent to places like this without the benefit of a defense. And then I was assigned your case.
(passionate)
You told me that on your world a few courageous people made a difference. I'm not sure I have the courage... but I know I can't restore honor to my people living as a fugitive.

ARCHER
You realize what that means... you said most prisoners here don't survive a year.

KOLOS
Most prisoners here have very little to live for.

A long beat between the two men.

(continuing...
REED
(urgent) Captain...

KOLOS
(to Archer)
Go.

ARCHER
Thank you.

Archer holds out his hand and Kolos grips him by the forearm, a Klingon handshake.

After a beat, Archer turns and he and Reed hurry off down the tunnel. We hold on Kolos for a long beat as he looks after them. Then, he bends and picks up the pickaxe that Archer was using. He hefts it, and swings it hard against the wall.

As Kolos slowly batters away at the wall, chipping it away piece by piece, we...

FADE OUT.
